[Cite as: R. v. G.J.L., 2002 NSCA 14]

APPEAL HEARD: January 23, 2002

JUDGMENT DELIVERED: January 28, 2002

SUBJECT: Young Offenders - Disposition - Robbery - Probation

SUMMARY: The respondents, aged 16 and 17, pled guilty to charges of robbery of a sandwich shop and wearing a face mask. The trial judge imposed a sentence of 18 months probation with conditions including community service. On appeal, the Crown claimed that probationary dispositions for these offences were unfit.

ISSUE: Were the dispositions fit?

RESULT: Appeal dismissed. The dispositions could not be said to be demonstrably unfit or clearly inadequate. There was no error in principle which would warrant interference by the Court of Appeal.
